

American composer and pianist Andrew Filson creates music inspired by the various cultures with which he interacts. His interest in working with both Western and non-Western music has resulted in compositions utilizing traditional instruments from Korea, China, and Japan, and it is through this merging of distinct cultural elements that he strives to uncover a unique voice in the expanding field of intercultural composition.

Filson has received many awards and grants including the 1st Place Prize at the 2021 Korea National University of Arts Composition Competition for his work, Longing, a FLAS Fellowship (2021-22), an invitation to the International Gugak Workshop at the National Gugak Center in Seoul (2018), and an Erasmus+ grant for study at The Academy of Music in Kraków, Poland (2017). Filson is also the recipient of many commissions, including Torrent for wind ensemble, Chasing Autumn for two violin soloists, percussion, piano, and strings, and Fighting Against the Current for 7-string electric guitar and cello.

Recent premieres include Footprints on the Sands of Time, a work for solo gayageum, Torrent, a work for wind ensemble, Longing, a work for sanjo gayageum and piano premiered by Su-Yeon Ha and Weon-Ju Chu, Be Silent, a work for violin and 10-string dae ajaeng premiered by Dasom Cheon and Sora Yoon, Building Castles in the Sky as performed by gayageum player Sohyun Youn and janggu player Dongwoo Ham, Fractured Mirrors for flute and guitar, which was performed and recorded by Duo Alterity, and Tone at Twilight in Tokyo, Japan by the Japanese Orchestra Dolce. Filson's music has also received performances by notable musicians such as world-renown pipa virtuoso Yang Jing, the highly acclaimed Duo Yumeno, and many others.

Filson is a doctoral candidate at the University of Hawai'i at Mānoa. He is currently residing in Seoul while he works on his dissertation: a concerto for gayageum with gugak orchestra. Filson has received degrees from Anderson University (B.A.) and Butler University (M.M.), and his principal teachers have been Thomas Osborne, Donald Reid Womack, Takuma Itoh, Michael Schelle, Frank Felice, and Marcel Chyrzyński.
